

Why join CPSU?

We asked our members:

Solidarity

"In any workplace you need workers to operate as a group so you can have solidarity in any campaign to improve workers' rights and conditions."

Support

"I joined in the face of harassment in the workplace. My colleagues should join CPSU for support and solidarity in job security, recognition, remuneration and conditions."

Draw attention

"Government employees have special concerns and issues that need to be heard and addressed. We need to draw attention to our concerns as we want to achieve an equitable and positive workplace."

Voice

"I like to be fully informed of my rights and any changes that affect me either financially or in my workplace, and I believe that being involved and represented by a union allows me a voice."

Workplace issues

"I joined CPSU when I started working in school administration. I quickly became aware of issues that were affecting us, like workload and classification. I realised that if I was to have any input into these areas and the terms and conditions under which I was employed, I would need to become actively involved in the union."
